FSGA STATE AMATEUR 4-BALL, EAST BAY INVITATIONAL, PGA SENIORS, NAPLES, TOP EVENTS

BY BILL FRITTS

THREE MAJOR GOLF EVENTS, highlighted by FSGA's State Amateur Four-Ball Championship, are on tap for the Gulf Coast in September, offering prime competition and a tantalizing hoard of prizes.

Anderson, still a Sarasota resident and sales manager for Arvida's Longboat Key properties, will be entered in the tournament.

The Longboat club, characterized by narrow fairways and flanking water hazards, also was the scene of the 1969 FSGA State Amateur, won by Bob Rankin of Clearwater.

The popular Four-Ball was played last year at Palm-Aire Country Club in Pompano Beach and was won by Mickey Van Gerbig of Palm Beach, the reigning State Amateur champion, and Kevin Butler of West Palm Beach, with a pair of 67's. They edged Gary Schroeder of Winter Park and then State Amateur Champ Glen Kirk of Orlando by one stroke, posting 13 pars and five birdies on the last day of the two-day event.

Van Gerbig and Butler will be on hand to defend their Four-Ball title, one of the most coveted in the FSGA's tournament portfolio.

Team entry fee for the 36-hole stroke play best ball event is $70 and includes two days of golf, carts, and parties Friday and Saturday evenings. Team prizes will be given in all flights. The club will give a free practice round Friday prior to the tournament. Contestants pay for their carts for continued on page 2 the Friday round. Practice rounds at other times prior to the tournament will be charged for at the rate of $10 per person for green fee and share of cart.

THE BEACH CLUB HOTEL in Naples, one of the West Coast’s most popular and venerable layouts, will be the scene in mid-September of a memorial salute to Denny Champagne, founder and first president of the Florida Section PGA.

The Beach Club and the Florida PGA have joined forces to sponsor the Florida
PGA Memorial Senior Championship, scheduled Sept. 14-15, honoring the memory of Champagne and his contributions to Florida PGA golf. (Champagne, incidentally, was the FSGA’s 1964 Fairway Award recipient.) It will be a 36-hole stroke play event with a $12,000 purse (based on 200 players).

In addition, there will be a Pro-Am 18-hole event on Sept. 13, to which all FSGA seniors have been invited. Practice rounds are set for Sept. 11, 12 and 13 for the Memorial event.

The Beach Club Hotel is offering a special rate for tournament entrants and their families, and the same rate will apply to early arrivals.

AT THE END of September the East Bay Golf & Country Club of Largo is staging an inaugural event, the 1977 Annual Invitational Golf Tournament, which will be a 54-hole stroke play tournament with prizes being awarded through the first five places and in all flights.

Entry fee of $125 will include all green fees, electric carts, cocktail parties and dinners Friday and Saturday nights.
Entertainment will include dining and dancing to Earl Hagen’s “Party Poopers” orchestra and to Billy Moore’s orchestra.

The tournament begins Friday, Sept. 30 and ends Sunday, Oct. 2. A practice round will be held Thursday, Sept. 29.

Entries close Sept. 15, with the field limited to 144 contestants.

Special highlights of the event include giving away a 1977 luxury automobile for hole-in-one contest on No. 9 green, closest to pin and hitting the green contests, and a putting championship for men.

There will also be a special flight for top area pros, including Skip Alexander of Lakewood Country Club, Dean Refram of Saddletree, Mike Souchak of Innisbrook,
Jimmy Barber of East Bay, and others.

Those wishing to make advance hotel reservations may call the East Bay Club at (813) 584-7111.

Sawgrass was no vacation for the pros. For you it's a different story.

When Sawgrass was selected as the site of the Tournament Players Championship, some pros said the course was too easy. That hasn't been heard lately. A brisk wind and some tricky pin placements turned our usually civil course into a giant-killer. The big names carded big scores.

But now the pros have gone, the pins have been moved and the welcome mat is out. You and your family are invited to vacation at Sawgrass. While you take on the course that baffled the pros, your wife and kids will have plenty to do. Sawgrass has 3 swimming pools, a private beach, 200 acres of fresh water lakes and great fishing. There are 12 Racceco tennis courts, bikes and boats to rent. And there are trained youth counselors to arrange activities for the kids.

You'll stay in a private, beautifully appointed and completely equipped ocean front or golf course villa. Dine in one of the two fine restaurants where Chef Gunther Strueger oversees cuisine. Or relax over drinks in the ocean front lounge. Come stay at Sawgrass and you'll go home with memories of a vacation well spent. And, who knows, with a little luck you might even get the best of a course that got the best of the pros.

C an a small, independent golf club manufacturer find success in the merchandising jungle dominated by sports equipment conglomerates?

A Sarasota-based manufacturer is gambling that a little guy can make it with proper personal fitness.

"We can make it by giving personal attention to the customer and selling our custom-fit retailing concept," says Homer Edmonson, President of Tour Manufacturing, Inc., makers of Action Custom Golf Clubs.

"We can’t compete with the big national brand companies through pro shops, specialty stores and discount houses so we’re going the route with our own retail outlets," Edmonson said.

The TMI plant is located in Garden Industrial Park, east of Sarasota just off Cattlemen Road. In October the firm will move to new, more spacious facilities now under construction on Clark Road south of town. In addition to the manufacturing facility the plant will house a retail operation and the firm’s secret weapon, a computer swing analyzer.

THE COMPUTER ANALYZER, already in use in TMI's Clearwater and Jacksonville stores, electronically measures the golfer’s clubhead speed at impact. It also checks the swing path of the club to point of impact, the angle of the club face at impact, the distance the ball carried in the air and whether the swinger hit it right, left or center.

The analytical findings are reported instantaneously by flashing lights and digital readouts of clubhead speed and yardage numbers. The display remains lighted after the player with test clubs has propelled a golf ball off the tee into a net 10 feet away.

The TMI analyst checking the swing records the pattern of numbers on a special form, noting the club weight, shaft flex and length being used by the player being tested. This log resolves itself into a pattern for correct fit after the player has hit 20 to 25 balls using clubs of varying swing weight.

"Clubhead speed and the proper angle at impact is the key to an effective golf swing. The computer analyzer and the interpretation of the results by our trained staff people, enable us to make sound recommendations for personal club fitting," Edmonson states with the bright-eyed enthusiasm of a man who has come up with a better mouse trap.

It necessarily follows that TMI expects to translate the scientific findings into sale of its clubs to Joe and Jane Golfer after they have been properly fitted, through actual swing measurement, for more responsive and effective equipment.

Where his company only is two years old, Homer Edmonson is no babe-in-the-golf-woods. He cut his teeth 12 years ago with Professional Golf Company in Chattanooga. He started in the Tennessee plant developing new products in the golf club division which at the time manufactured First Flight as well as Arnold Palmer Golf Clubs.

"The computer analyzer, and the interpretation of the results by our trained staff people, enable us to make sound recommendations for personal club fitting."

EDMONSON PREACHES custom club fitting with evangelistic fervor.

AFTER HIS RESEARCH, design and production stint Edmonson hit the road for the company and in short years became PGC's Regional Sales Manager for Southeastern states.

The thousands of calls Edmonson made in those years on retail outlets, pro shops and specialty stores built his dream! To design and manufacture his own line of golf clubs and merchandise them in a unique manner through person to person appeal.

Florida with its heavy visitor and transient traffic presented the ideal market. First make a quality product, add the friendly personal fit approach, wed fine craftsmanship to computer science and you should be in business. Or should you?

"Well, it hasn’t been easy. It’s no piece of pie," the outgoing Edmonson smiles as he looks ceilingward in his nattily wood-paneled plant office. The upward glance should not be interpreted as a search for divine guidance but more for the answer to precise locations for two more retail stores to be opened within the next 60 days.

"I hope we’ll have those locations pinned down and operating by the time we get into the new plant. If we have five retail outlets over the state — in Clearwater, Jacksonville, Sarasota, Orlando and West Palm Beach — we’ll be in all the top golf markets and ready for winter business. That will be the real merchandising test of the program," Edmonson said.

"We know we can make clubs of quality, the equal or superior to anything now on the market. All of our manufacturing people are craft-conscious and have been in this business for a long time. We can render a service to the individual golfer that is not economical for the larger clubmaker. Our factory-direct, custom golf club philosophy is possible only through our size operation. We’re set up to manufacture specific types of custom clubs where the giants are locked into big runs of production models."

RECOGNIZING THE SHAMBLES which exist in the "pro only" merchandising of large manufacturers' clubs Edmonson has a view of the pro shop competition.

"When a golfer buys new sticks he’s investing heavy money these days. We not only can provide him with comparable or better quality but can give him a custom fit for greater proficiency at no extra cost. The added dimension of our computer analyzer makes it possible and that is a very valid bonus.

"We are manufacturers of custom golf clubs, not lesson-givers. We’re not invading that province of the golf professional. Lessons are the job of the golf professional. We manufacture and fit clubs and feel the greatest service can be rendered the buyer by selling direct to him after his physical swing requirements have been satisfied," Edmonson concluded.

An Unforgettable Variety of Golfing Pleasure!
Early Sarasota golfers enjoying the sport introduced to this country by J. Hamilton Gillespie, a Sarasota pioneer. The facts now establish Sarasota as the home of the first golf in the U.S.A.

SARASOTA:
Birthplace of U.S. Golf!

Col. Gillespie played first game of golf here 91 years ago and now there is solid proof.

by William Carey

First.
That's what a Sarasota Scot was when he built two golf holes here in May 1866.

And we're aware, ladde, that for 89 years documentation and publicity bred popular acceptance of Yonkers, New York, as the site of the first golf holes in the United States.

This is not to knock the D&P of John Reid and his Apple Tree Gang, may they rest in peace. Beginning in 1888 they performed splendidly in promoting early golf in this country.

Reid also had the smarts to indicate his cow pasture layout was the St. Andrews of America, an adroit hustle which further endeared the effort to historians, writers, golf buffs and duffers everywhere.

A wily native of Dumferline, Scotland, Reid was born in 1840, came to the United States in 1866 and actually did not play golf until his private golf hole project. But he obviously understood that when one stakes a claim, one tells people about it. And to make it stick you tell 'em again and again. Repeated telling gave Reid the muscle memory which popped his golf holes to the top for a good long 89 year run.

Now, at the shortened-backswing time of life, and attracted to the role of curmudgeon-at-large furnished by the findings of history, I seek greater recognition for the authentic builder of the real first golf holes in America.

Ours was first by two years

Public records of the Sarasota County Historical Commission, early family letters, pictures and diaries borrowed for study from friends and neighbors, have convinced me that the first builder was not John Reid but another Scot, John Hamilton Gillespie. Many documents and reports substantiate Gillespie's Sarasota work in May 1886 preceded Reid's Yonkers date of February 1888.

Colonel J. Hamilton Gillespie was born in 1852 in Maffat, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, the son of a prominent attorney and land promoter, Sir John Hamilton Gillespie. Young Gillespie studied law, played golf at Edinburgh and St. Andrews, was a Captain in the Royal Artillery, a member of the Royal Company of Archers, Queen's Bodyguard for Scotland and the first mayor of Sarasota.

This article is reprinted from SARASOTA TOWN & COUNTY MAGAZINE's special Gillespie issue.
British publications which covered the sport. Other well known personalities and writers like John Ringling, Gene Plowden, O.B. Keeler, Joe Graffis and Herbert Warren Wind mentioned the first golf holes but never ran with them for wide recognition.

Wind, in his “Story of American Golf,” recognized as the history of the game, makes brief but erroneous mention of Gillespie. The material appeared in the eminent historian’s first work in 1948 and was repeated verbatim in the monumental update published by Knopf in 1975.

He wrote:

“In 1873 the Royal Montreal Golf Club, the first on this side of the Atlantic, was formed, and at about this time follow-throughs began to ripple south of the border. These were the gyrations of Scottish settlers who had brought their baffies and gutties to the New World with them, the way Italians carried their violins and French women their needles. In 1883, for example, Colonel J. Hamilton Gillespie, investigating the possibilities of a lumber business in Florida, used to relax after a hard day’s work by hitting shots up and down what is now the main street of Sarasota.”

Joe Graffis, one of golf’s pioneer editors and publishers, now retired and living in Venice, forecast in the mid-30s in his Golfdom Magazine that, “The resulting publicity which will occur when Sarasota memorializes the establishment here of the first golf course in America, will bring thousands upon thousands of additional state revenue and income.”

In those days before the golf explosion, pollution, crowded roads and environmental protection agencies, it was the fashion for Florida resort communities to go with their best attraction to lure visitors. But Chamber of Commerce, City and County officials and private enterprise, for some unexplained reason, couldn’t see the value of promoting the fact that the first golf holes were built in Sarasota.

It has been a 20 year fascination to review Gillespie’s writings, records and memorabilia. Visiting Scotland where he and the game began contributed vast pleasure to reflective and meditative hours. Had I lived in Sarasota in his day I surely would have sought him as my Golf Guru.

Musing about how things probably were prompts a wee dram of speculation with the auld Scot’s spirit. Given that license I think his answers would play through this way...

Carey: J. Hamilton, was John Reid a pretender to the title “Father of American Golf?”

Gillespie: Aye, ladie. He was among the early ones. But not furst.

Carey: Even before Reid and his Apple Tree Gang, weren’t there other locations in the country where golf was claimed to be played?

Gillespie: True. But there is a lack of documentation. No doubt, with the number of Scots landing here in the mid-19th century, that there was some knocking of gutties in fields around America. The game was reported played at the Dorset Golf Club, Dorset, Vermont, in the summer of 1886, following our effort in that year. But there was no documentation of the date at the time of the first playing.

Carey: How many holes did you actually build in May 1886?

Gillespie: Twa holes f’r practice an’ they can be extended later, was the way I told my friends.

Carey: And you later added two holes at the original site.

Gillespie: Aye. The furrrst tee was at the rear of what was to become the Mira Mar Hotel. The holes extended easterly around a pond and across a meadow to the area near Main Street where Central School was built.

Carey: Colonel, that’s about a five iron shot from where the FSGA’s office has been for many years. After the four holes you continued east and built a new nine hole course?

Gillespie: And a clubhouse! Twas a beauty. It was 1904 when we built Sarasota Golf Club.

Carey: Gary Player came to visit that site in the late 1960s. In 1958 the late Willie Robarts formally dedicated a Gillespie Garden there and mounted a bronze plaque which still stands, in memory of your early work.

Gillespie: Beootiful. I would have liked to participate in the affair.

Carey: Getting back to the early building, Colonel, there are legendary reports of golf in the 1780s at Harleston Green in Charleston, South
Gillespie Golf Week, held in May this year at the Country Club of Sarasota, will develop into something special and lasting. Dedicated to a golfer, so imbued with the spirit and wonder of the game, that he was often heard to remark to non-players, “Mon, yer missing half y’er life.”

You can bet the swinging Scot didn’t miss half his life, for he played the game for 63 of his 71 years. In character to the end, Gillespie suffered a heart attack, collapsed on his own Sarasota course, died the next day, September 7, 1923, at his home a midiron away from the clubhouse.

Great events in history, like Scots Whisky, gain flavor with age. May the Gillespie golf story be exposed to the millions who accept the game as the auld Scot did.

He was our earliest warm-bodied symbol. Symbols should be preserved. A society which wastes its symbols ultimately loses its identity. Golf is an identity important to our social order. We must honor its past and tradition, improve its present, plan well for its future.

Welcome to New FSGA Member Clubs

The FSGA takes pleasure in welcoming five new members to its club rolls, three of which are in the southeast sector of the state and the other two in the northern tier.

The southerly trio are Crane Creek Country Club of Stuart, Quail Ridge Golf & Tennis Club of Delray Beach, and the Dade Amateur Golf Association of Miami.

In the northern sector are Jefferson Country Club of Monticello, near Tallahassee, and Rolling Greens Country Club of Milton at the westerly end of the Florida Panhandle.

FSGA Seniors meet in Vero Championship

Senior members of Florida State Golf Association converge at Vero Beach Country Club Oct. 15-16 to vie for the FSGA Seniors title, won last year over the Vero Beach layout by steady shotmaker Ralph Raymond, Sr., of Sarasota.

Raymond, a veteran of FSGA links battles, carried off the title after nipping Tom Grady of Orlando in a playoff. Both Raymond and Grady had finished the regulation 36 holes with two-over-par 146s, and in the sudden death playoff Raymond dropped a birdie chip-shot on the second green to clinch the victory, after Grady carded par.

Raymond was chosen as one of four FSGA players to go to the National Bicentennial Tournament of Champions at Kingsmill Golf Club, Williamsburg, Virginia, last October, just a month after winning the Seniors title, but was unable to attend. Grady, the runner-up, substituted in his place. Other members of the Florida foursome were Glen Kirk (then Amateur champ), Austin Jones (current president of FSGA), and Dexter Daniels, Jr., 1976 FSGA president.

Both Raymond and Grady are expected to compete once again in the Seniors match at the Vero Beach layout.

Contestants will compete in age divisions beginning with the 55-59 bracket and progressing through 60-64, 65-69, and 70 and over. Gross and net prizes will be awarded in all flights.

The tournament is open to all FSGA members who meet the age requirements and who have paid their annual dues of $20 or are on the FSGA handicap system.

Entry fee for the tournament is $35 which includes two days of golf, carts, prizes, Sunday breakfast, and a Friday practice round (contestants pay for carts in the practice round).

THE USGA HAS ANNOUNCED new handicap allowances for multi-ball events — four-ball (better-ball) and best-ball-of-four competitions — will become effective January 1, 1978. The allowances are as follows:

Four-ball match play: 100 per cent
Four-ball stroke play: 90 per cent
Best-ball-of-four stroke play: 80 per cent
First-and-second-best-balls-of-four: 90 per cent

The new allowances will supersede the current allowances of 80 per cent for both four-ball match play and stroke play and 70 per cent for best-ball-of-four. There is no current allowance for the first-and-second-best-balls-of-four.

In applying the 100 per cent allowance in four-ball match play, the lowest handicap in the match plays at scratch and the other three players receive the full difference between their handicaps and his. In multi-ball stroke play handicaps are determined by multiplying the player's regular handicap by the specified percentage.

I thank you for sending me the magazine and the entry form for the state 4-ball. I also thank you for holding a spot for my Partner and myself for this tournament. I have enjoyed playing in it in the past and am looking forward to September.

I am enclosing my check for $88.00 which is for my Partner and my entry fee of $70.00 and $18.00 for our $9.00 dues each.

LIFE AT FORTY READY

Confirming your life Begins at Forty Tournament, arriving Thursday, November 3 and checking out Saturday, November 6, 1977. I am holding 125 rooms at $18 per room, single or double occupancy. As I mentioned, all of our older rooms, previously termed “standard” will have been completely remodeled.

Some other new features are the addition of the Boutique in the main lobby, a plant house in the court yard, a larger package store in a new location and a beauty salon for the girls after a hard day in the outdoors.

By the time you receive this letter, the Resort Social Hostess, Michele, should have contacted your wife to discuss the non-golfing wives activities. New names handling other areas are Mary Ann in reservations, Rose in charge of the front desk, the one who really runs the whole thing — Kathi, my secretary. Connor Chambers has taken Bill Neal’s place.

Bill, I appreciate the business and will do everything possible to make this another successful Lehigh tournament.

APPRECIATION

I’d like to take this opportunity to express my sincere appreciation for the fine article you wrote about my Dad in the August F.S.G.A. Newsletter.

I feel that your column, more than any other, portrayed the real Dick Demarest. He loved golf and his profession; to say the very least, it was his life and had been for almost fifty years, and because of this, he defended it when he felt necessary. I sometimes wonder how many of us would do the same?

In closing, I want to again thank you. You can be assured that I will always keep your column, as it will bring many happy thoughts.

GILLESPIE’S GOLF CLUBS

I would like to take this opportunity to thank you, personally, and on behalf of Maas Brothers for your interest and kind help offered us as we prepared to open our new store at the South Trail Mall.

Customer reaction and interest in the display of Colonel Gillespie’s golf clubs has been very exciting, and we are proud to be able to tie in to the historical significance of the game in Sarasota.

Again, our thanks for all your kind help as we put this program together.

HISTORY CORRECTED

What a thrill to receive the FSGA Golf News and the SARASOTA TOWN & COUNTY MAGAZINE featuring your excellent article on Colonel John Hamilton Gillespie. The only error I could find was about the print of the mixed foursome: . . . “the caption indicated your wife, Blanche, was on the tee at the time . . . “. Cousin Blanche was the second lady from the left, in the background, Cousin Kathleen standing next to her. Both of them wearing hats. I believe the lady addressing the ball was my aunt, Willa (Chapline) Kirkland, the oldest child of my grandparents, Judge and Mrs. J.B. Chapline, Sr. Cousin Louise, or Kathleen, could identify her I am sure. Or, better yet, Marcella (Mrs. Allen W.) Spencer, 1865 Fifth St., Sarasota, who is a niece of Cousin Blanche (McDaniel) Gillespie.

ARONIMINK — John Fought, the tall Oregonian whose summer golf was the hottest thing since aluminum seat-belt buckles, burned his way through a not-so-flame-resistant Doug Fischesser to win 9 and 8 in the final round of the 77th Annual U.S. Amateur Golf Championship here.

Fought, through this final amateur victory, won 22 consecutive matches during his summer tournament campaign. During the awards ceremony he acknowledged that he would soon turn professional.

Fischesser, who played his college golf at Florida State University, and is now an assistant golf course superintendent in Connersville, Indiana, was the closest relationship Florida had to the title this year.

Five times since 1965 Floridians have captured the world's greatest amateur golf tournament. Bob Murphy, Jr., in 1965; Bruce Fleischer in '66, Steve Melnyk in '69, Jerry Pate in '74 and Fred Ridley in '75, were Sunshine State stalwarts who went all the way. Ridley is the only remaining amateur of the select group and one of 16 Floridians who play in the National Championship at Aronimink Golf Club, a postcard pretty layout with a heritage back to 1896.

Ridley was eliminated in the match play spectacular by Hal Sutton of Blanchard, Louisiana, in the third round. Buddy Alexander of St. Petersburg also made it to the third round but was beaten by Fischesser en route to his appointment with Fought in the final.

Dallas Apelgren, of North Palm Beach and the University of Florida, came away with the best record of advancement. He went to the fourth round Saturday morning when he was beaten 3 and 1 by hometown favorite Jay Sigel, a Walker Cup team member from Newtown Square, Pa.

Sigel, a super striker of the ball who has won everything worth mentioning in Pennsylvania, was beaten by Fought, 2 up, in the semi-final round. The spacious men's locker room at Aronimink is wall to wall with plaques bearing witness to Sigel's links accomplishments. He is Mr. Everything in the golf business hereabouts. And the local gentry in the rolling horse country west of Philadelphia, where General "Mad Anthony" Wayne cut off the British at the passes and in the valleys during the American Revolution, certainly figured Sigel would go all the way on his home track.

Although beaten by Fought in the semis, Sigel's toughest match came in the second round against Backman J. Jones of Tampa. That's Johnny Jones, the tousled, blond, splendid-splinter of Florida junior golf who is headed to Oklahoma State this month.

Jones spent 13 hours at Aronimink on Thursday of tournament week. He was up at 5 a.m. for a 7 a.m. tee-off to complete his first round match of Wednesday which had been halted by rain and darkness. He birdied the par five, 16th hole in that head-to-hole to close out Richard McClear of Detroit, 3 and 2. He then had to wait more than five hours for his 1:32 p.m. pairing against Sigel.

The Sigel-Jones do was a classic confrontation between a seasoned, world class veteran with a vast following and a smiling, polite collegian who carried his own bag, and could cold play. In a thriller which saw the lead change several times by the slim margin of one hole, play came to the 17th, a par three, where Jones chipped in for birdie from 75 feet to go even. The 18th was halved in pars.

Tee-up time for sudden death on Number one brought additional fans scurrying to follow the action. By now Jones was as much a favorite as Sigel. Both had close rolls for birdies at the 428 yard opener and halved with pars. On the 20th hole, No. 2 on the scorecard, 379 yards, Jones was on in regulation 30 feet from the hole. Sigel, who had birdied the hole the first time it was played in the match, hit an absolutely perfect soft wedge over a yawning bunker and came to rest eight feet from the pin. He rolled in the putt dead center, shook his head in almost disbelief of the epic struggle, grasped Johnny's outstretched hand and said: "Toughest match I've ever had."

The crowd, headed back for the cardiac climb to the clubhouse, roared its approval of both players. Many fans came up to Jones to express the thought that they had just seen the championship match and it was a shame there couldn't be two winners.

Walking back to the clubhouse with Gary Schroeder, another of the Florida player contingent and this writer, Jones acknowledged that Sigel would be the player to beat for the title.

"I've never seen a guy hit so many good, solid shots in a round of golf," Jones said.

Mutual respect continued during the media interview in the USGA press room when Sigel again noted: "That was the toughest match I can remember. I knew Johnny was good, but that was just too much. He got it up and down six times, not counting the two times he chipped in."

In addition to Ridley, Alexander, Apelgren, Jones and Schroeder, already mentioned, Florida's complement at the National Championship included: Bill Bevan, Jacksonville; John Pacuk, Lake Shore; Jim Patrone, Royal Palm; Tom and Terry Anton, Gainesville; Ken Snyder, Winter Haven; Terry May, Altamonte Springs; Jack Veghte, St. Petersburg; John Duggan, Ft. Lauderdale; Darrell Walcker, Sunrise; and Bill May, Miami. The 16 qualifiers shared honors with California's 16 as being the most from a single state to qualify for the National Championship.

The Anton twins, from Columbus, Georgia, but playing out of the University of Florida and qualifying in the state, were the first twins act to make it together for the USGA's great event.

A 77th happening of anything is awe-inspiring. For contestants, host club members and USGA officials alike, the 1977 U.S. Amateur Golf Championship at Aronimink, was a measure of greatness in the game to be long remembered.

If the good Lord's willing and the creeks don't rise, we'll be aboard for the next highlight national chapter in amateur golf at Plainfield, New Jersey in 1978.

FSGA Fall Board Meeting Sept. 23

The Board of Directors of Florida State Golf Association will meet at Longboat Key Golf Club, Sarasota, Friday, Sept. 23, at 5:30 p.m. The Fall meeting will be held in the clubhouse just prior to the welcoming party for contestants and guests which will be hosted by Arvida Corporation and the Longboat Key Club, site of FSGA's State Amateur Four Ball Championship Sept. 24-25.

Principal business at the meeting will be to ratify the dates of the 1978 State Amateur Championship, to discuss a possible qualification format for the event and to consider invitations from other courses for 1978 FSGA tournaments.
The President C.C. will host 1978 State Amateur Championship

WEST PALM BEACH — The 61st Annual FSGA State Amateur Golf Championship will be held June 8-11, 1978, at The President Country Club here.

The four-day, 72-hole stroke play Championship is the oldest continuous sports event held in Florida and will be played in this area for the first time since 1967 when John Darr, Jr., won the amateur title with a tournament record 278 score at PGA National, Palm Beach Gardens.

The invitation to play the event at The President, extended by Perini Development Company, Senior Vice President, John P. Linstroth, was accepted in August by FSGA’s site selection committee after inspection of several courses in the Palm Beach area.

The selection committee was composed of E. Austin Jones, FSGA President; Kevin Butler, Vice President; Bill Carey, Executive Director; Mickey Van Gerbig and John Matthews. Van Gerbig is the current State Amateur Champion, winning the title at Orlando’s Bay Hill Golf Club in 1976.

In learning of the selection Linstroth wrote: “Our club staff including our Golf Director, Jack Sanford; Rick Jensen, Head Golf Professional and George Cavanaugh, Greens Superintendent, are looking forward to the event with great enthusiasm. You may communicate with Jack Sanford regarding any information or assistance FSGA may require during the coming months.”

The handicap requirement to receive an invitation to play in the State Championship will be four and under and the field will be reduced to 128 players. There will be a senior section for 20 players 55 years old and over. Senior players will be required to have a handicap of six or under.

Invitations and entry forms for FSGA members will be mailed April 1, 1978.

THE BIG VACATION
It’s for the rest of your life

This time you don’t go to your travel agent. Because this is the big one. The one that’s for life. The one that can make the rest of your life the best of your life. And only you can plan it.

You’ve worked for it. You’ve saved for it. You’ve thought about it for a long, long time. And it goes something like this:

It’s going to be on an island. Beneath the warm sun and a cabana sky. It’s got to have snow-white beaches and palm trees. Fishing in fresh or salt water. Boating and sailing at sea or on the bay.

It’s got to have championship golf and plenty of tennis courts. The kind of people you can enjoy it all with.

You want privacy without isolation. It’s got to be private and secluded. But not miles from nowhere. It should be convenient to sophisticated shopping and dining. Within a short drive of the theater, museums of the arts and a theater for the performing arts. All near enough but not close enough to intrude on the leisurely pace of island living.

You want your choice of lifestyle. Perhaps it’s a carefree Seaplace apartment
